

FISCAL YEAR 2024
ANNUAL REPORT

Your Support &
How It Was Used

Dear Friends,

This past year marked an exciting new chapter for the Cancer Research Institute (CRI)—and for me personally, as I joined the organization in August 2024. It has been an honor to lead an institute that is transforming cancer care through the power of immunotherapy. Guided by our strategic focus on People, Biology, and Data, we are shaping a future where every individual with cancer has access to groundbreaking treatments tailored to their unique needs. This vision fuels everything we do, from funding trailblazing research to mentoring the next generation of scientific pioneers.

In fiscal year 2024, CRI invested $22.8M in cutting-edge research across seven countries, awarding 64 new grants to drive discovery and innovation. Our support spanned critical areas—including clinical trials, postdoctoral fellowships, and technological advancements—reinforcing our commitment to accelerating the development of lifesaving immunotherapies. This investment is making a tangible impact: today, immunotherapy is available for 29 types of cancer, offering hope to approximately 9M newly diagnosed patients worldwide.

Through a steadfast commitment to financial stewardship, with 83% of expenditures directed toward research and patient education, CRI ensures that every dollar advances our mission. As we look ahead, we remain dedicated to pushing the boundaries of science, expanding access to immunotherapy, and ultimately achieving a world immune to cancer.

For a deeper look at our progress and impact, we invite you to explore the full report.

With deep gratitude,

Alicia Zhou, PhD
Chief Executive Officer
Cancer Research Institute

5 New CRI Lloyd J. Old STARs

The CRI Lloyd J. Old STAR (Scientists TAKing Risks) Program designates long-term funding to mid-career scientists, giving them the flexibility to pursue high-risk, high-reward research projects with the potential to make groundbreaking discoveries and innovations in cancer immunotherapy. The CRI Lloyd J. Old STAR Award is not tied to a specific research project but, rather, supports outstanding researchers based on the quality and promise of their overall work. Candidates selected for this award are expected to be the future leaders in the field of cancer immunotherapy, and this sustained funding will enable them to carry out transformational research. Each grant provides $1.25M in funding over the course of five years.

32 Postdoctoral Fellowships in Three Separate Tracks

The CRI Irvington Postdoctoral Fellowship Program provides support for promising young scientists at prestigious universities and research institutions around the globe. These scientists are seeking training in fundamental immunology or cancer immunology and are rigorously selected by our Scientific Advisory Council.

The CRI Irvington Postdoctoral Fellowship to Promote Racial Diversity empowers young scientists from underrepresented groups who seek to undergo training in fundamental immunology and cancer immunology.

The CRI Immuno-Informatics Postdoctoral Fellowship is designated for scientists who wish to be trained in both quantitative and biological sciences. CRI is convinced that immunological research and data science can propel future immunotherapy breakthroughs, and funding young, promising scientists to master these disciplines is the path forward.

All newly awarded fellowships provide $243,000 over three years to cover the fellow's salary plus an institutional allowance. CRI also provides funding to allow its fellows to attend the CRI-ENCI International Cancer Immunotherapy Conference and the annual CRI Bioinformatics Bootcamp.

A Newly Launched Bioinformatics Bootcamp

The CRI Bioinformatics Bootcamp brings together CRI-supported fellows for training by world-renowned faculty in cutting-edge and emerging technologies, and data analyses. Each bootcamp offers a dynamic curriculum incorporating technologies and platforms relevant to the field.

7 New Clinic and Laboratory Integration Program Grants

CRI's Clinic and Laboratory Integration Program (CLIP)

supports pre-clinical and translational research that can directly optimize the impact of cancer immunotherapy. Grantees are qualified scientists exploring clinically relevant questions aimed at improving the effectiveness of cancer immunotherapies. The CLIP grant provides two years of funding and a total of $300,000.

5 New Technology Impact Awards

The CRI Technology Impact Award provides seed funding to scientists seeking to address the chasm between technological development and clinical applications of cancer immunotherapies. Grantees are chosen based on the novelty, creativity, technical prowess, and innovative potential of their technology to impact cancer immunotherapy research globally. This grant provides two years of support and up to $300,000 in seed funding.

3 New Clinical Innovator Trials

The CRI Clinical Innovator supports novel clinical studies that address areas of high unmet need in cancer and seek mechanistic insights into clinical response with a goal of predictive biomarker discovery. To maximize the impact of each clinical trial, CRI advises on selected studies in a coordinated effort to optimize clinical trial design and translational studies. CRI provides up to $1M per trial.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Andrea Schietinger, PhD (CRI Lloyd J. Old STAR at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center) is advancing our understanding of how tumor-specific T cells can be reprogrammed for better cancer therapies. Her research reveals that CD4 T cells play a key role in empowering CD8 T cells to eliminate tumors during adoptive T cell therapy. She discovered that tumor-specific CD4 and CD8 T cells must interact with antigen-presenting cells (APCs) to reprogram CD8 T cells, preventing dysfunction and enabling tumor eradication. This groundbreaking work opens new possibilities for enhancing immunotherapy in solid tumors by leveraging these critical cell interactions.

CRI-supported researchers at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai—Nelson M. LaMarche, PhD (CRI-Bristol Myers Squibb Postdoctoral Fellow), Thomas Urban Marron, MD, PhD (CRI Clinical Innovator), and Miriam Merad, MD, PhD (CRI Scientific Advisory Council member)—have uncovered how cancer manipulates the immune system to fuel its own growth. Their research shows that tumors release signals activating IL-4 in the bone marrow, which reprograms immune cells to create a tumor-friendly environment. This discovery not only deepens our understanding of cancer's tactics but also identifies IL-4 as a promising target for new, more effective immunotherapies.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

Valsamo Anagnostou, MD, PhD (CRI-Torrey Coast Foundation GEMINI CLIP Investigator at Johns Hopkins) has revolutionized gastroesophageal cancer care. Her recent Nature Medicine study uses liquid biopsy (ctDNA testing) to predict which patients benefit most from immune checkpoint inhibitors (ICIs) and explores the effectiveness of neoadjuvant ICI therapy. This breakthrough offers a new way to personalize and monitor treatment, bringing fresh hope to patients and transforming how gastroesophageal cancer is managed.

Peng Jiang, PhD (CRI Technology Impact Award Investigator at the National Cancer Institute) is combining artificial intelligence (AI) and functional genomics to enhance T cell therapies for solid tumors. His project develops an AI model to predict factors that boost T cell antitumor activity, alongside CRISPR screens to identify key genes that improve T cell efficacy. This research aims to uncover new gene targets, create patient biomarkers, and provide an AI framework to advance cell therapy in solid tumors, offering promising new strategies for more effective treatments.

CRI Collaborated with Oncology Experts to Identify Gaps in Advanced NSCLC Research

CRI, in partnership with Regeneron Pharmaceuticals, commissioned an online survey of 250 U.S. oncologists through The Harris Poll to explore treatment options for advanced non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC). The survey revealed that 96% of oncologists agreed on the importance of having multiple treatment options for patients, and 71% expressed interest in additional research focused on new combination therapies involving immunotherapy. This collaboration highlighted the critical need for further research to overcome treatment resistance and expand access to clinical trials, emphasizing the need for innovative approaches in NSCLC treatment to improve patient outcomes. ### CRI and ICRF Collaborated to Co-Fund a Project Grant

CRI and the Israel Cancer Research Fund (ICRF) jointly announced the co-funding of a project grant to advance cancer research. The grant will support innovative studies aimed at uncovering new strategies to enhance the effectiveness of immunotherapies. This collaboration combines the expertise and resources of both organizations to accelerate the development of life-saving cancer treatments, demonstrating a shared commitment to advancing scientific discovery and improving patient outcomes worldwide. » READ MORE HERE

CRI and the Lustgarten Foundation Launched the INSPIRE Partnership to Support Pancreatic Cancer Immunotherapy Research

CRI and the Lustgarten Foundation launched the INSPIRE partnership to jointly support innovative research in pancreatic cancer immunotherapy. The partnership aims to accelerate the development of effective treatments for this challenging and often deadly cancer by funding cutting-edge studies that explore new immunotherapeutic approaches. This collaboration underscores the commitment of both organizations to advancing scientific breakthroughs and improving outcomes for pancreatic cancer patients. » READ MORE HERE

In FY2024, CRI expanded its outreach and patient engagement efforts with a series of impactful events and educational initiatives. The 2023/24 CRI Patient Immunotherapy Summit, moderated by Emmy Award-winning journalist Tamron Hall, provided a deep dive into the latest cancer immunotherapy advancements, featuring key experts such as Dr. Jedd Wolchok, Dr. Elizabeth M. Jaffee, Dr. Kunle Odunsi, Dr. Sarah Sammons, and Dr. Thomas Urban Marron. The summit brought together patients, caregivers, and clinicians to discuss the future of immunotherapy for various cancer types, with key sessions on pancreatic, ovarian, breast, and lung cancers.

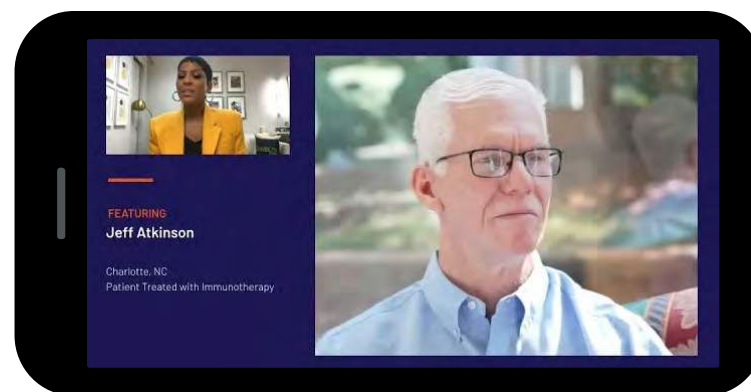

Additionally, CRI launched its Spanish-language Immunotherapy Patient Summit in early 2024, hosted by television host and entrepreneur Ana Patricia Gámez, to reach and educate the Spanish-speaking community on cutting-edge research and treatment options.

*“Without a shadow of a doubt,
immunotherapy saved my life.”*

– Jeff Atkinson

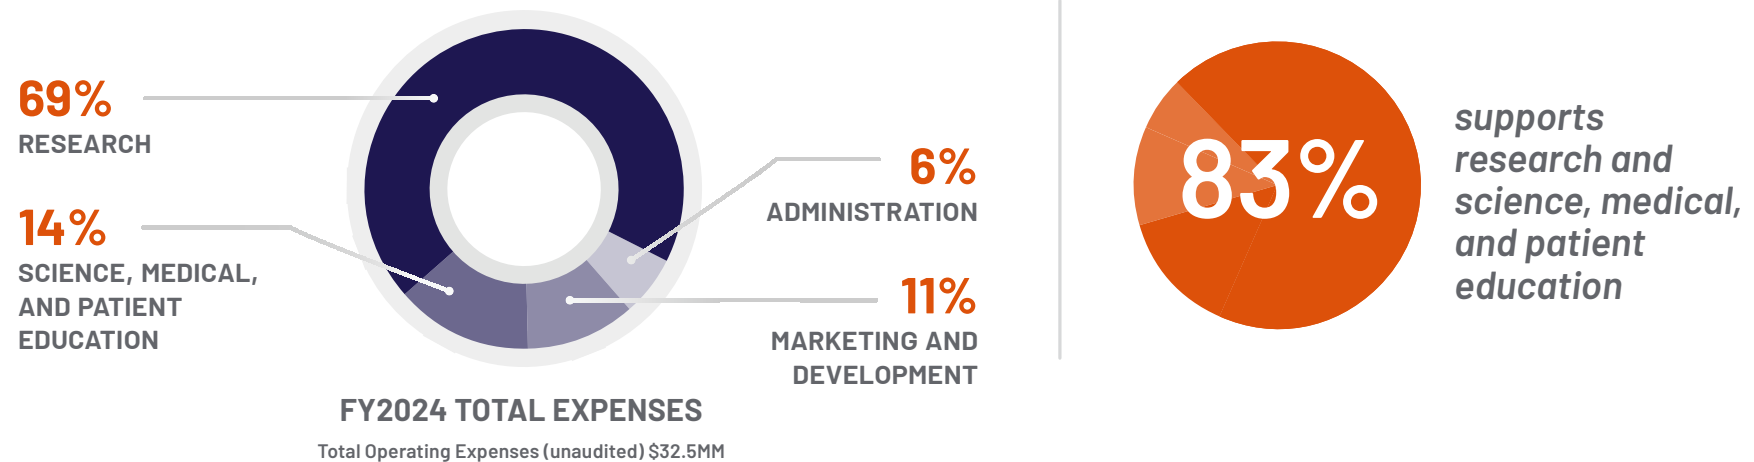

CRI also held a series of four patient education webinars in FY2024, which explored a range of topics such as the future of cancer immunotherapy, CRISPR advancements, lung cancer treatments, and cancer vaccines. These webinars featured distinguished experts such as Dr. Nina Bharadwaj, Dr. Alexander Marson, Dr. Thomas Urban Marron, and Dr. Vinod Balachandran. Furthermore, CRI facilitated a focus group discussion on cancer survivorship, and an encore of the Patient Summit was featured during June’s Cancer Immunotherapy Month, furthering CRI’s commitment to providing patients with the knowledge and resources to navigate cancer treatment options and improve their quality of life.

To accelerate cancer cures, CRI's Clinical Accelerator funded two multi-institutional trials focused on ovarian and pancreatic cancers, using innovative immunotherapy combinations. The IPROC and REVOLUTION trials target these highly malignant cancers with adaptive designs to test new treatments and analyze patient samples for biomarkers and resistance mechanisms. In parallel, CRI's Clinical Innovator Program supported early-stage research through six additional trials targeting cancers like liver, prostate, and glioblastoma. Together, these efforts combine cutting-edge research with clinical testing to drive forward novel therapies and improve outcomes for hard-to-treat cancers.

FINANCIAL OVERVIEW

In FY2024, 83% of CRI’s total operating expenses went directly to supporting research and education programs. CRI consistently receives exemplary marks from watchdog groups, including an A Rating from CharityWatch, a Platinum Seal of Transparency from GuideStar, and a 100% Four Star rating from Charity Navigator. CRI is a proud member of the BBB Wise Giving Alliance, meeting all 20 standards of charity accountability.
